Little Rock's Gospel:

Never Give a Neighbor

Any Kind of a Break

Little Rock takes a dim view of helping other Arkansas towns get home rule under state law but she is very quick to speak up when the shoe pinches her own foot.

Both the Arkansas Gazette and the Arkansas Democrat fought the smaller cities on proposed constitutional amendment No. 43 in the 1952 general election which aimed to give all cities a power already held by big Little Rock — authority to tax the municipality to create industries which would attract new businesses.

Both Little Rock newspapers fought this home rule measure for all Arkansas cities most vigorously — and proposed amendment No. 43 was defeated.

And then last Sunday, November 15, the Arkansas Gazette printed unobtrusively a quaint editorial lamenting Little Rock's civic shortcomings and pointing out that what Little Rock needed was more home rule and less restrictions under state law.

After listing the various deficiencies in Little Rock's municipal life the Gazette said:

"They are true because the City of Little Rock is still governed under an antiquated and inadequate charter which militates against municipal efficiency and because statutory and constitutional limitations deprive the city of an adequate tax base."

That's exactly how Hope and the other secondary cities felt a year ago when we asked the state for authority to tax our own property to create funds for industrial locations. But Little Rock, already enjoying such authority, looked down her long cold nose and implied that such taxing authority was dangerous in the hands of small municipal children.

Kids shouldn't play with matches, but when Little Rock has the guts to lecture other adult towns about what they are competent or incompetent to do the net result is to light a fire of hatred and discontent throughout the state which will keep Little Rock's municipal government in a strait-jacket for years to come.

Group Is Told Value of Wood Management

The value of sound woodland management was shown to approximately 100 farmers and business men who attended the Conservation Field Day at the Monroe Samuels farm near DeAnn on Monday, November 16.

Mr. Samuels told the visitors how he started a selective cutting program in his 100-acre woodland back in 1943, with assistance from foresters of the Ozan Lumber Company and the Soil Conservation Service. Some of his woodland fields have yielded as much as $100 per acre during the ten-year period, and now have more standing timber than they did when his selective cutting program was started.

Proper cutting, according to Russell Moberg, Ozan Lumber Company forester, and Al Herrington, International Paper Company forester, assisting Mr. Samuels, is simply removing the weaker and defective trees to leave the better trees with the right amount of growing space. Cuttings should be made on each field at five to ten-year intervals.

The group was shown by District Forester Buster Benton how a combination of airplane and ground survey with radio and telephone are used to detect and locate forest fires and how fires are suppressed with hand tools and tractor plows.

Dendening worthless trees by girdling and by chemicals was illustrated by Extension Forester Harold Howell.

Planting tree seedlings with a mechanical planter, and with hand tools was demonstrated by George Brown of the Soil Conservation Service, and G. H. Brotherton, planter contractor.

The Arkansas Tree Farm System was explained by Dr. K. Bemis as a movement sponsored by the forest industries to promote better forestry by giving recognition to landowners who are doing an outstanding job of managing their woodlands for permanent production. Mr. Bemis announced awards of Tree Farm Signs and Certificates to the following Hempstead County landowners: Monroe Samuels, Vincent Foster, Ray McQuinn, Gunter Lumber Company, Mrs. J. P. Owen, B. J. Ellis, Mrs. J. R. Henry, Mrs. Mildred Douglas, C. C. Lewis, and Barto Bearden.

A Timber Estimating Contest netted Jesse Burke $10.00 for first prize, and Sid Burke $5.00 for second prize.

Chiang's Nat'l Cabinet Quits in Dispute

By WILLIAM MILLER
TAIPEH, Formosa, (UPI)—President Chiang Kai-Shek's Chinese Nationalist cabinet has resigned in a dispute over whether to subsidize Gen. Claire L. Chennault's Civil Air Transport company, authoritative sources said today.

Chiang was understood to have accepted the resignation of his secretary-general, Dr. Wang Shih-chieh, but not the resignations of the other cabinet members.

However, Dr. George Yeh, foreign minister, strongly denied he and other cabinet members had resigned.

"There is no foundation for the whatsoever," he said.

He would not comment on Wang's reported resignation.

Nevertheless, Chiang was said to have appointed deputy Secretary-General Hsu Ching-chi as acting secretary. Speculation here was that former Governor Dr. Wei Tiao-ming will succeed Wang to the highly-important advisory post.

The court, in two other cases, tried jointly, ordered a fence along the right-of-way of Highway 71 near Locksburg be removed at the expense of a Dierks Lumber Company. The suits were styled Dierks Lumber and Coal Company vs. Frank McKellar and James Tollett, et al.

Dulles Says Russia Fears the People

CLEVELAND — Secretary of State Dulles said today Russian rulers have refused to talk with the West about European problems because of fear for their control over peoples behind the Iron Curtain.

"The Soviet rulers have retreated into a diplomatic defensive, the secretary declared. 'The free world now has the diplomatic and moral initiative.'

Dulles, in a speech prepared for the annual convention of the CIO, said he hoped the free nations would 'sustain that initiative by being ready to talk about any concrete point of difference—whether it be in Europe or in Asia, or whether it be in relation to armament.'

But he cautioned that a desire to confer with the Russians 'should not lead us to confer where the only probable result would be an apparent moral approval of the Kremlin rule over the peoples of 15 one-independent nations.'

Dulles said it is his belief that the examples of progress and accomplishment in the free world would ultimately cause the collapse of Soviet control over what he called 'the captive world front.'

He said it is neither necessary nor desirable 'that we should try to incite violent revolution.'

It was in this connection that Dulles claimed a clear victory for

Five Negroes Perish When Home Burns

GOULD — Fire burned down a farm tenant house near here yesterday and five children perished.

The victims, all girls, were the daughters of Leon Hunt, Negro. Their ages ranged from four months to seven years.

Negotiators Report Some Progress

By SAM SUMMERLIN
PANMUNJOM — Allied and Communist negotiators today agreed to make some progress in talks to arrange an already long-delayed Korean peace conference.

The Communists today turned down an American plan for inviting neutral nations to the full-dress talks. But they apparently abandoned demands for a round-table conference at which neutrals—including Russia—would have a full voice.

The Reds suggested instead that neutral nations attend the conference as a third party to insure a 'harmonious atmosphere, but with almost no voting power.'

U. S. special envoy Arthur Dean said the vaguely worded Red plan needed clarifying and asked the Reds a series of questions: The Communists indicated they would answer at tomorrow's meeting.

Elsewhere in Korea there were increasing signs that the Communists might not resume interviews with Chinese and Korean war prisoners who have refused to go home.

The Indian command said there would be no interviews tomorrow and a spokesman said he had no idea when the explanations would resume.

Can't Balance Budget Next Year, Ike Fears

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH
WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower, shunting aside the Harry Dexter White case at his news conference, said today he does not believe the federal budget of 1954 can be balanced in the fiscal year beginning next July 1.

He also said the administration probably won't know until next month whether it will have to ask Congress to increase the national debt ceiling with the Republican conference.

He gave two reasons for his belief a balanced budget can't be achieved in the fiscal year beginning next July:

One, he said, was the need of tax adjustments, to remove injustices. He indicated this would necessitate some loss in revenue.

He gave expenses of the farm program as the other reason. E

Churchill May Offer Plan for Russian Truce

LONDON, (UPI)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill may present to President Eisenhower at Bermuda a bold new plan to keep the peace by agreeing to an 'armed truce with the Soviet Union, authoritative sources said today.

Churchill considers the idea a first step toward relaxing international tension gradually, since his wish to ease the pressure with bolder diplomatic strokes obviously has failed, the sources said.

The 'armed truce would be backed by broad mutual non-aggression assurances between east and west, according to the informants.

The truce would leave open all disputed problems and frontier issues until it is indicated they may be settled amicably.

Thus a truce with the Soviets would leave some unsettled issues but would guard against their heating up enough to kindle war.

The West would remain armed for defense but gain a 'breather' during which more concrete arrangements might eventually be reached for settlements with the Kremlin.

Churchill's new plan would replace earlier ideas for a quick all-out settlement of the cold war which informants said he is abandoning with reluctance because of insurmountable obstacles.

Crash in Which 15 Die, Probed

FORT BRAGG, N. C. (UPI)—An Air Force board today investigated the crash of a C-119 "Flying Boxcar" which crashed through a mass drop of hundreds of paratroopers, killing 15 men and injuring 11.

All but one of the planes "stuck" yesterday as the 51st craft whirled in a tight turn to avoid billowing parachutes and the plunged to earth.

The pilot, who heroically stayed with his plane to guide it away from the jump, three crew members and one paratrooper died as the C-119 plowed into a pine forest and burned. Ten paratroopers were killed by the huge plane as it plunged to earth.

The Air Force ordered a board of inquiry from Lawson Air Force Base, Calif., here to investigate the cause of the crash.

Ike Hopeful Spy Issue to Clear Soon

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Eisenhower today expressed hope that the issue of Communists in federal government would be a matter of history by the time of the 1954 congressional elections rather than of continuing controversy.

"The Chief Executive declined to comment at today's news conference on the case of Harry Dexter White."

But he said that by the time the American people go to the polls again, he hopes that the fear on the part of the public of communism in the federal government will have disappeared.

The President under questioning said forcefully that his administration in the meantime would proceed vigorously to route any subversives out of the government but in a way that would not endanger individual liberties.

The chief executive refused at the outset of his meeting with reporters to discuss the White case in any form. He gave that reply when he was asked whether he felt need for new legislation as a result of disclosures in the case.

Committee Says Arkansan Backed Glassen

P I PROMERS REVEAL — QHQ WASHINGTON D C Senate investigators introduced evidence today that former Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder promoted Harold Glassen in 1949 after FBI reports had linked Glassen with Harry Dexter White in Soviet espionage.

Documents to this effect were put into the record of the Senate internal security subcommittee which yesterday heard FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover testify that he opposed — but bowed to — former President Truman's decision to keep White in the government.

Hoover declared too that moving White from assistant secretary of the Treasury to U. S. director of the International Monetary Fund, as done by Truman, hampered the

DOROTHY DIX

A Hearsay Affair

Dear Miss Dix: My sister-in-law has an idea that her husband is being pursued by one of her best friends. However, instead of approaching either the husband or neighborhood, she has absolutely no proof that an affair exists. It seems to me she's letting her imagination run away with her. Do you agree that she should stop discussing the matter before outsiders, especially when the subject is largely a matter of conjecture?

F. N.

Pride, Discretion lacking
Answer: Your sister-in-law lacks pride as well as discretion. Most women would prefer to keep domestic skeletons well closed, as they should. Outsiders are seldom interested in family troubles of this type, except as something to gloat over—and naturally, pass on to the first receptive ear.

If your sister-in-law's suspicions are groundless, and the other woman happens to hear the gossip (as she must certainly will), a slander suit may soon be hanging over your brother's family. Ruined reputations come expensive, too.

Can you do anything to stop this flow of slander? If so, you'd better take steps before the thing gathers so much momentum that it can't be stopped.

For a moment, let's consider the possibility that there actually is something more to the story than a jealous assumption. Even in that case, your sister-in-law should be more prudent. Many a mild flirtation, that normally would have died, has been skyrocketed to pyrotechnic intensity through the focusing of too much relative will lose more through her loose tongue than through a loose woman.

Dear Miss Dix: My husband is angry with me because I don't want to live with his parents. We are so happy here in our own apartment. Both of us have good jobs. His parents don't really need us, they just want company. Am I unreasonable?

PRISCILLA
Answer: Since you have established your own home, and are maintaining it without difficulty, it would be foolish to pack up and move in with someone else. Marriage is primarily the establishing of a new home and family; effecting a compromise by sharing the home when there's no real necessity to do so would be very unwise.

Dear Miss Dix: I wrote you before, but you did not answer my letter. My problem is that I've dated a boy who is married. I didn't know he was married until after our first date. Now I love him too much to give him up. He and his wife don't love each other. Is it all right for me to go out with him?

Answer: Your name and address on a stamped envelope would have brought a personal answer. However, if you read this column, or practically anything else, you certainly have learned by this time that nothing is so futile (to say the least) as dating a married man. It's sheer tommyrot to claim that after one date you can't give him up. You're being dangled on a string, my girl, and you'd better drop off before it's much too late.

Boyle four. But what has that got to do with my new idea for a two-piece suit?

Your idea is more than 2,000 years old, said his grandfather. It originated with the forebear of one of those insignificant two-legged beasts you just looked at, and it led to the downfall of mankind.

"Tell me about it," said the young man, who suspected old grandpa had been nipping at the bourbon again and was off on another tall tale.

"In those days human beings were as big as ants are now, and we had to live underground to keep from being trampled to death," began grandpa.

"They were a curious race. They killed and robbed each other for six days of the week and rested on the seventh day to regain their strength for more slaughter. But they had made considerable progress, considering their weak necks. They were strong and tall and powerful."

"Then, following one of the wars they seemed always engaged in, a clothing company sold them on the idea of doing without a vest."

"Just then ocean putting out pagans that only came to the knees and elbows. Then they quiet wearing hats, reduced the necktie to the width of a shoestring, and started leaving shoestrings out of shoes."

"Then they cut down the size of their houses, and left out the dining room and the bedrooms. Before long their houses had only two rooms — a den and a garage."

"They put more and more seats in their buses, trains and subways, and the seats got smaller and smaller. The big people became so uncomfortable they began to die out. Then everybody started eating less and less, and each generation got smaller and smaller. There no longer was room in the world for a big man — or a big feeling."

"One day a man tried to trample an ant, and the ant trampled him instead. Well, what a thrill that was! We decided we could take over the world. And you know how we did it? By reversing the trend. We forced people underground into colonies, and started living above ground ourselves like individuals."

"We are more and bigger bigger. We built bigger and bigger homes and larger seats on our buses — and grew up to fill them. We never allowed one ant to crowd another. And our civilization reached its peak when we finally restored the vest to male suits. That was the climax to our victory. Do you think I want to start the ant world on the downward path of man?"

"I'm sorry grandpa," said the abashed young man, backing out the door.

The old ant tore up the designs for a two-piece suit, walked to the window and scattered the scraps on the struggling mass of human beings below. Then the fine old fellow sat down in his swivel chair, crossed four of his six legs across his vest, and leaned back for a comfortable snooze.

Morale: Anybody who gives up his vest may also lose his shirt.

FBI in its investigation of White. Truman who had declared he took his action to avoid tipping off the investigation of a suspected Russian spy ring, had no comment on Haver's testimony beyond saying: "The sure he told the truth."

And President Eisenhower, declined at a news conference to make further comment on this specific case. He said he had spoken his last word, for the time being at least, on the White case.

Eisenhower said, however, that he hopes his administrative clean up in Washington will eliminate the Communist-in-government issue from next year's congressional election campaign.

He said as he has before that Congress has a right to investigate as it sees fit.

This was in response to a question as to whether he had meant congressional committees should not continue their investigations along that line.

In a brief public session, the Senate internal security subcommittee cited on Aug. 22, 1940, letter Snyder wrote notifying Haver that he is being appointed director of the Treasury Department's monetary research division at a salary of $10,000 a year.

Sen. Jenner (R-Ind.), the subcommittee chairman, said this was one of a number of "very serious letters" signed by Snyder.

Snyder had been invited to be present for today's hearing but said word he could not arrange to come at this time.

Subcommittee counsel Robert Morris pointed out that glassers' appointment as director of the monetary research division occurred after two summaries of FBI reports on Soviet espionage had been sent to the Treasury Department.

In a telegram to Jenner, Snyder said "I want you to point out that the record clearly shows that within approximately 18 months after I became head of the Treasury Department and its 116,000 employees, to the best of my knowledge, all suspected subversives were separated from the department and none

Dulles Says

The United States, Britain and France in their diplomatic exchange with Russia, beginning last July, over their proposal for a Big Four foreign ministers meeting to unify Germany and establish Austria independence. In a note Nov. 3 the Russians in effect rejected the specific proposal, insisting that first there must be agreement to meet with the Chinese Communists on world problems, and that the Western nations must abandon their joint defense arrangements.

Chiang's Nat'l

developed over Chiang's willingness to give a subsidy to Communist operations in Seoul and Bangkok, which are reported to be losing money.

President Chen Cheng's entire cabinet was opposed to the move and turned in their resignations to Wang "some time ago, these sources said."

Wang was reported to have kept the news from Chiang, but had to resign when it finally came to the president's attention.

Chenault, a long-time friend and adviser of Chiang, founded the American volunteers the "Flying Tigers."

He retired as commander of the U.S. 14th Air Force in 1945, but returned to China in 1949 to take over direction of his unit, which American officials described them as "the only effective air transport system in China."

At the time, the air link was vital to Chiang's government. The Generalissimo's forces were then split between the southwest interior of the mainland and the island of Formosa.

On a visit to the United States in 1950, Chenault urged American aid to Chiang for an eventual offensive against the Chinese Communists.

The Cabinet crisis surprised other Asian capitals.

Some diplomatic observers expressed belief it might prove to be a "family quarrel" which could be smoothed over. Others speculated it might mark the beginnings of serious trouble for the Nationalist government, isolated for four years on the island fortress of Formosa.

Reports from Tokyo said the news of the development was promptly relayed to U.S. vice President Richard M. Nixon. Even the Chinese embassy in Tokyo was taken by surprise. Chinese ambassador to Japan, Dr. Hollington Tong said he had "no comment."

There was speculation in some quarters that the crisis may have developed from reports from Washington, including a statement by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, that the United States has not completely closed the door to recognition of Communist China.

Most quarters doubted that the development meant Chiang was in serious danger of losing his dominant position.

State Loses in Bid for Half Million

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Arkansas yesterday lost its bid to have a half million dollar law suit involving the state of Texas heard by the U. S. Supreme Court.

In a 5-4 vote the highest court deferred action on Arkansas' request to file suit against Texas until litigation in Texas courts has been concluded.

The William Buchanan Foundation, not up in 1923 in Bowie County, Tex., wants to give a half million dollars to the University of Arkansas to help build a hospital at Little Rock.

Justice Douglas writing the majority opinion, said that if the Texas litigation within the whole dispute it would leave no occasion for the Supreme Court to act.

Justice Jackson wrote a dissenting opinion joined by Justices Frankfurter, Clark and Minton. Jackson said he favored denying the Arkansas request "because we think no case is presented appropriate for action here."

In the injunction suit, Texas asserted that the "trust agreement provided for all funds to be spent for the benefit of Bowie County residents."

Arkansas said the Court had exclusive and original jurisdiction because the dispute was between two states. Arkansas said it had not submitted itself to the jurisdiction of the Bowie Court.

Texas argued that the Court should have no jurisdiction over the matter, if the foundation were brought into the action; and that gating his charge that in 1946 for President Truman knew White was a spy for Russia but prosecuted him. White died in 1948.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — J. Edgar Hoover, the man who has been heard from directly, could supply missing links in the Harvey Dexter White case, unless Attorney General Brownell does it today.

That raises a question: Can't the former President, in a tele-vision-radio talk to the country last night, called Brownell's plain what they know? Truman charged a deliberate lie for political purposes and gave this explanation.

In 1946, the FBI, headed by Hoover, sent him a long report containing accusations that White, then assistant secretary of the Treasury, was part of a Russian espionage ring.

Truman had just named White to another job — with the International Monetary Fund — and in spite of the FBI report he said he job so long.

White had the job after de- clared the FBI should have more time to find proof, or disproof, of White and others accused of being part of an espionage ring among government employees.

Truman said he had made his decision after Fred M. Vinson, then Treasury secretary and White's boss, and Tom C. Clark, then attorney general and Hoover's superior, talked with "other gov- ernment officials." Vinson is now dead.

Clark, now a Supreme Court justice, has refused a subpoena of the House Un-American Activities Committee, although he said he could consider answering written questions.

That raises a question: Can't some of those "other government officials" mentioned by Truman explain what they know? Truman didn't name them, but it was reported that FBI Director Hoover was one of them.

He could talk, if a congressional committee called him. Brownell might make it unnecessary for Hoover to say anything.

The FBI boss has carefully stayed out of political brawls, and unusual achievement which, together with the FBI's brilliant record, accounts for his keeping his name out of the spotlight.

But his agency has never been dragged into a dispute like this before. Actually, forcing him to testify might injure the effective- ness of FBI operations.

Nevertheless, it's his present boss, Brownell, who started the dispute and unless Brownell, answer clearly some of the ques- tions still unanswered there may be points forever left hanging.

For example: Did Hoover think it a good idea to keep White or on him?

Any others in government service early in 1946? Or had the FBI been checking and reporting on him for years?

Says Rita Hayworth Not Sexy Enough

DENVER, Colo. (UP) — Glam- orous Rita Hayworth was accused today of not being sexy enough.

Gilda Gray, shimmy Queen of the Twenties, who is seeking $1,000,000 damages on grounds that one of Miss Hayworth's movies expropriated "the story of my life," said she watched the red-haired screen star shimmy in the picture "Gilda" and "she did it awful."

"She didn't put the sex appeal into it that I did," Miss Gray complained, "and she doesn't have my staging."

The U. S. district court here will go to see Miss Hayworth in a private showing of "Gilda" next Monday in an attempt to find the answer to the million-dollar question: Is it true "there never was a woman like Gilda?"

Miss Gray filed her suit against Columbia Pictures April 13, 1949, charging that the catchline used to promote the movie was true and indeed, there never was "a woman like Gilda."

Since 1900, the United States has produced about 129 million motor vehicles.
